Garage Italia have dropped their new Integral-e collection and we want it all

Lead

To celebrate the reveal of their latest electrified Fiat Panda, Garage Italia have launched a capsule collection of merchandise with a playful nod towards the iconic Integrale badge.

Powered by two electric motors, one to the front wheels and one to the rear, Garage Italia's new Fiat Panda Integral-e seems well equipped for any mission - and we wouldn't even be surprised to see it on Mars or Bond-style beyond the sea. Outside the paint colours are supplied by BASF and inside the interior is treated to a stunning Alcantara make over and JBL audio. We can't wait to see one at our next Panda Meet in St Moritz, but for now we will make do with the clever Integral-e capsule collection and crazy art prints that are available in the Classic Driver Shop now. Who will be the first person to take a Panda to the moon? We wouldn't be surprised if it's Garage Italia!
