

CLASSIC DRIVER

Feast your eyes on the new Alfa Romeo 33 Stradale

Lead

Taking inspiration from the gorgeous Alfa Romeo Tipo 33 Stradale of the 1960s, this is Alfa's first new supercar in 15 years.

Loosely based on the Maserati MC20 just 33 examples will be built, each totally individualised to their custodian's taste and rumoured to cost between 1 and 3 million dollars. Before you ask, yes they're all spoken for.

The 33 Stradale will be available with either a 750hp AWD electric powertrain or a 607hp twin turbo 3.0-litre V6 driving the rear wheels alone. However, you'd have to be out of your mind to choose the former.

Built by the famed Carrozzeria Touring Superleggera, could this be the best looking release of the year?

Gallery

