To celebrate five years of cooperation, luxury brands Aston Martin and Jaeger-LeCoultre have launched a new version of the AMVOX5. The latest chronograph includes a world time function.

So, whether you are in Gaydon or S. Georgia, a glance at the high-tech, ceramic/titanium (or optional ceramic/rose gold) chronograph will immediately have you up to speed on the time of day in Abu Dhabi, Athens or Auckland.

As with previous Aston Martin 'AMVOX' Jaeger-LeCoultre watches, the dial is semi-skeletonised and has a distinctly 'race-bred' pedigree of carbonfibre and other state-of-the-art materials.

Two versions will be available, both limited in numbers and coming with a calfskin strap as standard. The ceramic/titanium edition will be produced in just 300 pieces, while just 200 collectors will be offered the opportunity to buy the ceramic/rose gold variant. In addition, 100 specially made AMVOX5 World Chronographs will be made available as special 'Racing Series' watches.
