

CLASSIC DRIVER

On the Whiskey Trail: The 'Bulleit Woody Party Trailer'

Lead

Who else but luxury store Neiman Marcus could offer a travelling bourbon carrier, made of old bourbon whiskey casks and carrying enough of the American golden nectar to see the hardest drinker under the table?

Referred to as 'The best gift, bar none!', the trailer was designed by interior stylist Brad Ford and built in conjunction with American leathergoods company Moore & Giles.

The purchase price of $150,000 includes not only the hand-finished trailer, the perfect way to enliven an outdoor camping trip or a visit to the Kentucky Derby, it also allows the new owner to benefit from a one-year supply of Bulleit Bourbon and Bulleit Rye.

There is one limitation, though: based on 'FDA average consumption', the one-year deal will not exceed four cases of each.

Someone else will be driving the trailer home, one assumes.

Video: Vimeo

Gallery

Hide gallery

Hide gallery

Source URL: <https://www.classicdriver.com/en/article/whiskey-trail-%E2%80%98bulleit-woody-party-trailer%E2%80%99>

© Classic Driver. All rights reserved.