

CLASSIC DRIVER

Playboy's toys: Hef's choice from the Market

Lead

With such a passion for living the 'fast life', it's little wonder Hugh Hefner has often displayed enthusiasm for cars. Based on those he's previously owned - as well as his obvious appreciation of curvaceous bodywork - we make a selection from the Classic Driver Market through Hef's eyes...

Apparently, Hef named his empire after the recently defunct Playboy Automobile Company - and his interest in American cars doesn't end there, as the picture above attests. But he's also a big Mercedes fan: he's known to have owned a 300 SL Roadster, as well as a pair of 600 Pullmans. The latter, rather unsurprisingly, came complete with champagne coolers, central partitions, rear privacy curtains and reclining rear seats.

With an eye for voluptuous curves, Hef would perhaps be instinctively drawn to an E-type, or maybe a pretty Ferrari Dino. Then again, there's every chance he'd let his eccentric side run wild by choosing this Zimmer (no giggling at the back please) Quicksilver, coincidentally of the same vintage as his wife, Crystal.

A playboy's picks from the Market

Gallery

Source URL: <https://www.classicdriver.com/en/article/cars/playboys-toys-hefs-choice-market> © Classic Driver. All rights reserved.