

CLASSIC DRIVER

Auto Aerobics: ... and one, two, three, four, lift that wheel!

Lead

Cars are solid, bulky objects, yes? Then you probably haven't come across Chris Labrooy's aerobic automobiles...

Originally intending only to create a digital model of Brooklyn on a cold winter's day, English artist and 3D designer Chris Labrooy found things getting a little out of hand - as a roadside Pontiac suddenly developed a bizarre life of its own.

The Pontiac ballet of Brooklyn

The idea of auto aerobics was born. And things grew (and rolled, and stretched, and flexed) from there, as the Seventies road cruiser found new forms in the warm evening light of New York. Crazy, but also rather good, we think.

Gallery

Source URL: <https://www.classicdriver.com/en/article/art/auto-aerobics-and-one-two-three-four-lift-wheel>
© Classic Driver. All rights reserved.