First glimpse of the 2016 Bentley SUV

Lead

Bentley has released the first image of its production-spec 4x4, set to be released in 2016...

Little else has been revealed about the groundbreaking Bentley, but it's clear that the front end has been significantly rethought since the ill-received debut of the EXP 9 F concept in 2012.

Considered such a vital model to the future of the British marque – at least 3,000 are forecast to be sold annually – the design must hit the right note within all the company's major markets. This early picture suggests a closer resemblance to the front-end styling of current Bentleys, although we'll have to wait a little longer to find out if this applies to the front wings and beyond.
