

CLASSIC DRIVER

Zagato becomes latest coachbuilder to 'Brake' an Aston Martin

Lead

Italian design house Zagato has debuted a new one-off Aston Martin Virage Shooting Brake at the Chantilly Arts & Elegance Concours d'Elegance, completing the Aston Martin-Zagato centennial trilogy in style...

Commissioned by a European client and revealed at last weekend's Chantilly Arts & Elegance, the Virage Shooting Brake Zagato follows the DBS Coupé and DB9 Spider Zagato Centennial models, both of which were shown at last year's official Aston Martin centenary celebration in Kensington Park.

Said to encompass design cues from the mid-1980s V8 Vantage and Volante models, the bespoke design is certainly fresh, though thankfully the core Aston Martin/Zagato design principles have not been lost in translation - double bubble, anyone?

The very English shooting brake concept has long been the darling of Italian design houses, so it was perhaps the natural step for Zagato to complete the Aston Martin centennial trilogy in such a way.

Photos: © Rémi Dargegen for Classic Driver / Zagato

Gallery

Source URL: <https://www.classicdriver.com/en/article/cars/zagato-becomes-latest-coachbuilder-brake-aston-martin>
© Classic Driver. All rights reserved.