Your chance to own Steve McQueen's Porsche 911... sort of

Lead

Antwerp-based design house Studio Job has paid tribute to the unmistakable shape of the Porsche 911 by creating a limited number of bronze casts, made in-house at its own atelier...

In comparison to its last automotive creation – the Land Rover Defender with which it 'spoke in tongues' in 2013 – Studio Job's vision of the Porsche 911 is a little more restrained, shall we say? Measuring 22 x 9 x 7 inches, the hand-polished bronze cast is based on the Porsche 911S (the model made famous by Steve McQueen in the Le Mans movie). Dedicated to the McQueen car and limited to 100 examples – plus one prototype and 10 artist's proofs – each will be marked with the initials of both the artist and the collector, and delivered in a wooden presentation box with a certificate of authenticity.
