The Bel & Bel Zero Scooter perfects the classic optical illusion

Lead

This week's 'Two Wheel Tuesday' is a bit of an unorthodox one. Merging futuristic technology and classic styling, Spanish studio-workshop Bel & Bel have released the 'Scooter Zero': a Segway-style autobalancing scooter, clothed in a design reminiscent of a classic Vespa moped...

New balance

Supplied either as a single unit, or as a kit that can be retro-fitted to the NineBot autobalancer upon which it's based, the Bel & Bel Scooter Zero is apparently available in 'infinite colours', and even has Bluetooth compatibility with Android and Apple devices. It might not quite have the charm of a 1950s scooter, but it'll certainly turn more heads - particularly if you take a late morning ride through Tuscany. The Zero Scooter goes on sale in September; prices are yet to be announced.
