

CLASSIC DRIVER

54 years. One million Porsche 911s. Time well spent.

Lead

After 54 years of production, the millionth Porsche 911 rolled off the line in Zuffenhausen earlier this week, and it's a properly wonderful thing...

A milestone moment

You'd have thought that Porsche would adorn the millionth 911 with a wing on which you could serve a banquet, seats that only a contortionist could get into, and an engine that revs to oblivion and pulls like a train, but quite the contrary. In an exercise of restraint and taste, the Irish Green Carrera S has been finished with such details as a wooden-rimmed steering wheel and houndstooth upholstery, to echo the very first 911 from 1963. Before it's confined to a plinth in the Porsche Museum, the car will go on a global adventure — one in which we'll be involved when we make a very special pilgrimage to a place that's so synonymous with the illustrious marque. Watch this space!

Photos: Porsche

Gallery

Source URL: <https://www.classicdriver.com/en/article/cars/54-years-one-million-porsche-911s-time-well-spent> © Classic Driver. All rights reserved.