For those who want customisation without excessive adornment, Diamond Atelier’s new Ducati Scrambler “Sixty2” will get you from home to work in minimalist style...

Less is more

Munich-based customisation specialist Diamond Atelier proves that a practical, everyday commuter doesn’t need to be boring with its new Ducati Scrambler “Sixty2”. Based on the Ducati Scrambler 803, small adjustments and tweaks, such as a custom, handcrafted rear frame, rear suspension by Wilbers and front USD forks, Brembo brakes, and tubeless tyres, give the motorbike an understated yet intriguing new look. And the red paint and tan cowhide leather saddle, Ducati Scrambler headlight with customised aluminium surround, and original fuel tank make the “Sixty2” stand out from the scooters and e-bikes littering the city roads. For the bankers by day and the bikers by night, this Ducati Scrambler “Sixty2” is the perfect machine to take you from the meeting room to the motorway...
