Here's a supercar for even the most jaded of collectors: meet the wild one-off De Tomaso Pantera GT5, modified by German tuners Zastrow and now for sale with Speed 8 Classics.

We know what you're thinking: "Did a NASA space shuttle crash into the back of a Ferrari 512 BB LM?" Close, but no cigarillo. In fact, this white and wild piece of 1980s lunacy is the product of German tuners Zastrow, who heavily modified this De Tomaso Pantera in-period to create the F-ZERO-esque supercar you see today. Inside, it's a weirdly wonderful mix of gentleman's cigar lounge and racecar cabin, boasting four-point harnesses, tobacco leather, and a lovely helping of wooden trim. So, if the Ferraris and Lamborghinis of the world have been causing you to dose off, why not drive something really out there?
